

RELX Editorial Policy

The RELX Code of Ethics and Business Conduct makes clear our commitment to excellence and our obligation to uphold ethical standards in all our corporate activities. Accordingly, the RELX Editorial Policy ("Policy") outlines principles underlying our products and services, including but not limited to data, books, journals, magazines, websites, blogs, marketing, apps and other mobile content and community sites.

We have a responsibility to all stakeholders, including our authors, editors, reviewers, customers and employees, to produce information of the highest quality which: is reliable, comprehensible, and timely; which avoids bias, defamation, discrimination, conflict of interest or plagiarism; which makes a clear distinction between fact and opinion; and clearly identifies editorial, advertising, user generated or other content. We respect human rights. We encourage dialogue on our content, including through responsible use of social media. We encourage pluralism of sources, ideas and contributors and aim to advance informed decision making. We are committed to universal, sustainable access to information.

We do not allow threats or inducements to influence our management, handling, or publication of information.

We have a responsibility not to take personal advantage of information gained in the course of our duties before that information becomes public knowledge.

To foster a free exchange of ideas, we allow our authors, editors and reviewers independence in their decision-making and freedom from internal and external pressure. For parts of the business where appropriate, we verify content, cite supporting materials and use methods such as peer review to ensure impartiality and balance. We respect privacy, including the data privacy and security of our customers and those with whom we work and engage. We uphold copyright laws. We are committed to using artificial intelligence responsibly.

RELX employees have the right to refuse an assignment or be identified as the author of editorial content that violates the letter or spirit of this Policy.

We ensure awareness of our editorial standards by employees and relevant stakeholders. We are transparent and provide clear instruction for corrections, retractions or withdrawals, and provide mechanisms for reader and customer feedback and for registering any concerns or complaints.

Employees should report breaches of the Policy to a company lawyer or a compliance committee member. Breaches may result in disciplinary action after appropriate investigation.

We share and require adherence to this Policy with relevant suppliers.

For further information, see related RELX policies including Quality First Principles, Privacy Principles, and the RELX Code of Conduct and Business Ethics, available here.